

Education Industry

Jones Walker represents universities and educational institutions, both public and private, with enrollment ranging from just over 1,000 students to more than 50,000 students. In several cases, these universities operate medical centers and hospitals, specialized laboratory facilities, and research institutes, as well as multiple campuses—including satellite campuses—in several cities.

Our work for clients in the education industry, namely universities, includes a vast number of matters in intellectual property. We also regularly represent universities in litigation, business and finance, real estate, tax, and labor matters. Recently, our work in the area of education has extended to charter schools and other secondary education institutions. Our clients benefit from the experience of our attorneys in multiple practice areas, and we bring together adept and efficient legal teams to provide our clients with comprehensive legal service.