

Manufacturing Industry

From American automobile manufacturers to grain producers in the central United States, Jones Walker represents numerous types of manufacturers and other companies related to the manufacturing industry. Our clients include aerospace products and parts manufacturers, appliance manufacturers, solid waste collection companies, primary metals manufacturers, commercial construction contractors, household vacuum cleaner manufacturers, industrial building construction companies, grain and oilseed producers, food manufacturers, industrial machinery manufacturers, automobile manufacturers, industrial chemical manufacturers, electromedical and electrotherapeutic apparatus manufacturers, paper manufacturers, and engineering services companies. These companies vary in size and range from privately held companies to large publicly traded conglomerates. Each company we represent faces unique challenges and has its own specific legal needs, so we bring together attorneys with experience in multiple practice areas—and who have knowledge of several areas of business—to provide our clients with comprehensive legal service.