Christopher Cazenave is an associate in the firm's Business & Commercial Litigation Practice Group. He joined the firm in 2009 following graduation from the George Mason University School of Law. While in law school, Mr. Cazenave served as both the Executive Editor of the George Mason Law Review as well as a member of the Moot Court Board. With an undergraduate degree in economics from Louisiana State University, Mr. Cazenave remains interested in the intersection of law and economics as it applies to antitrust, trade regulation, and overall litigation strategy.
