

Maritime Emergency and Casualty Response Team

JONES WALKER

Being prepared to respond to a catastrophic event or accident means having a well-coordinated and tested casualty response and investigation plan adapted to your company's specific needs.

The Jones Walker LLP maritime emergency and casualty response team provides clients the training and experience necessary to assist in minimizing exposure and maximizing recovery after an event. Because our clients' issues may arise at any time, members of our team are always on call.

Managing the Aftermath: When "What If?" Becomes "What Now?"

Jones Walker has extensive experience with matters involving maritime disasters, collisions, allisions, contamination claims, oil pollution response and liability, environmental damage claims, and salvage and wreck removal.

We assist clients in handling not only the immediate aftermath of an emergency or casualty event, but also the subsequent response to the far-reaching business, financial, regulatory, criminal, and public relations consequences of an emergency or casualty event. Our all-encompassing experience also includes representing numerous clients involved in federal grand jury investigations arising out of alleged environmental crimes and other federal crimes.

> "Jones Walker has market leading experience in all aspects of claims handling and litigation, solid name recognition and a deep bench to handle matters large and small on a cost-effective basis."
